

PRACTICUS™

Powering Problem Solving and Recruitment in the

NHS

HELLO!

Practicus has a 17-year track record in working with individuals and organisations as they journey through change. We provide a range of resourcing and consulting services and our mission is to be the most trusted – change partner.

We recruit senior interim professionals for key positions in the NHS. We specialise in hard to fill roles in operational management, finance, transformation and turnaround, projects, digital and HR.

We help find the best people that make real contributions to the organisations they serve. Our success is built on long-term relationships with clients and candidates. Practicus has consistently been ranked in the top three Interim Service Providers by the Institute of Interim Management.

Our Practicus Community is made up of professionals who are passionate about knowledge sharing and supporting each other in solving business challenges. This community, today numbering over 800, has delivered invaluable support and bespoke advice to help to people manage change, processes and technology.

THE POWER OF COMMUNITY:

Practicus is a community-based organisation that goes beyond traditional networking and recruitment to nurture relationships with senior leaders. Reciprocity in knowledge-sharing and problem-solving lies at the heart of the community's success.

Our community includes groups focused on issues such as clinical leadership, integrated care and many of the issues facing boardrooms across the NHS.

'Ask the Community' enables us to connect someone facing a new and difficult challenge with an expert who has faced similar challenges and is willing to share best practice and lessons learned.

When Transformation Leader, Liz Eckert was grappling with the challenge of how to measure need, ahead of making recommendations on where to position urgent treatment services for a West Country CCG, she needed information quickly.

The contributions from the Practicus NHS Community were compiled into a report for Liz which she used as supporting evidence in her proposition to the CCG.

ACUTE CARE

CASE STUDY

United Lincolnshire Hospitals was in special measures when it engaged Practicus to provide expertise to manage its Financial Efficiency programme within clinical support services. Together, the Trust and our programme lead delivered savings in excess of the CIP target. This included efficiency savings across projects within radiology, pharmacy, CBU, outpatients, therapy, endoscopy and cancer.

Our consultant also played a role in facilitating the review of operations and subsequent improvements – meeting with the different teams, discussing the issues and managing improvement opportunities through to the delivery stage. This included completing quality improvement assessments before any change was delivered – assessing efficacy, safety issues and the impact on the patients, staff and the Trust.

During the pandemic, our consultant worked with Outpatients to deliver a virtual appointments service. Many doctors were shielding, able to work but unable to be on site and by offering virtual clinics to patients they could still contribute. Our consultant delivered the solution for virtual appointments and achieved a targeted 30% reduction in footfall overall, exceeding in many areas. This work produced an efficiency saving in the number of nurses needed to support Outpatient appointments, enabling vital resource deployment to areas of need during the pandemic.

COMMISSIONING

CASE STUDY

South West London CCG is partnering with the London Borough of Merton on a Multispecialty Community Provider (MCP) model to deliver improved outcomes for the people of Merton through integrated health and social care services.

The CCG engaged Practicus to provide a team that would help accelerate delivery of this programme and facilitate strong partnership-working – both between the main parties but also with acute, primary and community healthcare providers. In addition to accelerating this alternative delivery model through programme direction and subject matter expertise, our team was involved in the projects within the MCP. This included advising the three lead managers for the integrated locality teams project.

Our team identified a further opportunity that justified the use of an alternative service delivery model. Integrating the intermediate health care services of the NHS side of the partnership with the re-ablement service of the local authority, created a single service. Our team created the proposal, managed the project and facilitated the co-design, production and implementation of the new service with the teams involved. As a result, both the response times and volume of work completed has improved, creating capacity for more referrals and reducing delayed discharge.

SUPPORTING THE HEALTH ECONOMY NATIONALLY COVID-19 VACCINE PROGRAMME

At a time when the UK and the world was frantically in search of a vaccine, a Director within NHS England engaged Practicus to support the COVID Supply Chain Response Team. She wanted to engage a small team of senior leaders with very specific skills around logistics and supply chain and she wanted to do it very quickly. At a time in 2020 when so much was unknown, the team that Practicus and this sponsor rapidly created, would go on to play an instrumental role in making sure the logistical operation and infrastructure sitting behind the national vaccination programme was as efficient as possible.

The complexity should not be underestimated. It involved third-party logistics structures and supplier relationships, engagement with the military and community pharmacy, set-up and run of major centres like NEC, regional centres like race-courses and local centres like GP surgeries. Not only was this team recruited and mobilised in record time, it was required to hit the ground running at break-neck speed to plan and implement the infrastructure, processes and equipment required for national vaccination.

The vaccination programme is ongoing.
